LOUD & CLEAR

A multimedia event presented to you by Oomiak celebrating the opening of the WILLIAMSBURG PUBLIC HOUSE, Saturday Dec. 7th.

Oomiak, an artist collective, founded by Ariane Hafizi and Oliver de Lantsheere, will be presenting a collection of works by various artists representing the diversity of New York City's art community. Participants are multifaceted and will be contributing paintings, calligraphy, and sculpture in addition to performance art, theatre, and video. The event will be set to a soundtrack provided by local d.js, such as GH Minimus creator and producer of pocket, and live bands featuring lettuce.

One highlight of the evening will be the inclusion of the Brooklyn Theatre Project (who were recently responsible for the off Broadway production of Dracula). Exit the apple, an independent film group who are in the process of finishing their most recent piece to be shown at BAM in Brooklyn, will also be projecting a twenty minute film at the beginning of this night.

This event will give an occasion for up and coming artists as well as established artists such as David X Levine (exhibited recently at the Cynthia Broan Gallery in Chelsea) to come together as one to celebrate their differences and similarities, in an explosion of crude, intelligent, and humorous forms of communication. The amalgamation of the ideas and their manifestations will give the spectators and the participants the opportunity to express and be received.
